Not if masks are required, without masks, yes.

CURRENT

Proof should not be required, but we should consider ways to strongly encourage vaccinated individuals only to attend in-person

I would feel comfortable with a verbal yes or no.

This is a yes from me, but I wouldn't block consensus. The the yes is for right now. In a year things may be different.

As a general rule, yes. But maybe exceptions for medical reasons?

CURRENT

Yes, but this should be reevaluated regularly.

I am fully vaccinated, and I would be more comfortable if others were as well, but I'm not clear on making it a requirement.

Not sure how I feel about that. On one hand, I would love to know that this group of people for whom I have such love are as safe as can be. On the other hand, it's pretty intrusive and feels like the camel's nose under the tent wall.

I'd prefer that Friends were strongly encourage not to come to the meetinghouse if they are not vaccinated

CURRENT

Encouraged; some people might have medical reasons for not getting vaccinated

Loaded question - sad it has to be asked. Mostly I do support it.
